EDMONTON BULLETIN, MARCH 12TH, 1894.

THE DELEGATES.

Messrs. McCauley and Kirkpatrick, delegates from Edmonton and district to the Dominion government in behalf of a bridge across the Saskatchewan, left for Ottawa on Friday morning. The fact that they only had one day in which to prepare for such a long journey, and an indefinite stay, and yet were ready, showed that their hearts were in their work. The promptitude and energy which they displayed is an evidence that no mistake was made when they were chosen to present our case at Ottawa. If they are too late for the estimates they should be in ample time for the supplementary estimates. Having lost so much time in the presentation of our case it is well that we should lose no more; and evidently if we do it will not be the fault of our delegates. If provision for the bridge is made in the estimates and the usefulness of the delegation is thereby destroyed we can console ourselves for the comparatively trifling cost with reflections on the benefits that we will receive from the construction of the bridge. But if the delegation delayed until the estimates were brought down it would then be too late to bring any pressure to bear during the coming session. There is everything to gain and nothing to lose by being in as good time as possible. The longer the time available the more practicable it is for the delegates to secure a union amongst and assistance from the various interests that would be benefitted by a bridge at Edmonton, the list of which need not be enumerated, but which includes not only the H. B. Co. but the C. P. R. itself. That our delegates are thoroughly in earnest they have already proven, and that they are competent to prepare our and present our case fully and fairly no one can doubt. Nor is there any doubt that they have the full endorsement of the people of both town and district. The sometimes opposing forces of Edmonton, South Edmonton and the farming community surrounding both, are united for once on this point, as the formal resolutions passed at the various public meetings show, and although there was a certain amount of friction in the selection of the delegates, there was nothing more than might be expected in any community which was blessed with the amount of ambition and energy necessary to its progress and well being. That the town at which the proposed bridge is to be built has the chief interest in it goes without saying, and as well that under ordinary circumstances the mayor is the proper person to represent the interests of the town. Therefore the selection of the mayor as a delegate was practically a foregone conclusion. Some people thought that one delegate would answer the purpose as well as two, at much less expense. But on the other hand it was felt that if only the mayor were sent it would tend to give the government the idea that only the town was interested, whereas the whole region is interested as well as, although perhaps not as much as, the town. The board of trade had been re-organized quite recently with a strong membership, particularly with a view of dealing with the bridge question as representing the country at large, aside from the special interests of the town; and the board took the responsibility of suggesting Mr. Kirkpatrick as a suitable person to represent business interests generally. Aside from Mr. Kirkpatrick's personal abilities, of which nothing need be said, no doubt the board were influenced to that selection by the fact that by reason of his position as bank manager he was possessed of more information regarding the business of the district than any other person in it; and having an interest through the institution which he so well and faithfully represented in the whole of that business, he could be depended upon to do his very best to forward the project that would so materially assist in the development of the country and the increase of its business, while at the same time increasing the security of business already in hand, and in no wise disarranging present relations. His name was placed before a large and representative meeting of ratepayers of the town and farmers from the surrounding country in conjunction with that of the mayor, on motion of the president of the board of trade, seconded by a prominent member of the council of the board, and he received a majority of the ballots cast against the gentleman who was nominated in opposition to him. No doubt had Mr. Kirkpatrick supposed that his nomination would have been contested he would not have consented to be a candidate. But having consented to be a candidate he could not in justice to those who had formally and publicly expressed their preference for and confidence in him do otherwise than accept the decision of the meeting. When the matter came before the town council in due course every member of the council voted for Mr. Kirkpatrick either on the motion that was made or on the amendment. No stronger endorsement could have been given to any person. No doubt some other man might have filled the place more acceptably to some people than Mr. Kirkpatrick. But everyone can't have everything his own way. It would be a poor world if everyone thought alike, but in view of the strong endorsement received by Mr. Kirkpatrick any effort now made to weaken his position must be taken as an attack not upon him but upon the object of the delegation.

PATRONS OF INDUSTRY.

A convention of delegates from each sub-association of the patrons of industry in Northern Alberta was held in the council chamber, Edmonton, on Saturday afternoon, the 10th inst. Thos Hutchings, president, in the chair, at which the following resolution regarding a bridge, moved by D. Maloney and seconded by D. B. Wilson, was unanimously adopted:

Whereas, This burning question has been agitating the farmers of Northern Alberta for years and all appeals proved futile, we supposed the authorities could not have had a thorough comprehension or genuine knowledge of this great country; but now, as three astute statesmen and advisers of the crown have witnessed the absolute necessity of the immediate construction of a bridge on the Saskatchewan at Edmonton no further excuses or dilly dallying can be expected from such a concentration of wisdom as constitutes our ministry at Ottawa.

Whereas, Admitting there was not even a single settler north of the Saskatchewan, it would be a wise and judicious policy for the government to erect a bridge at once at this point; but how much more is it needed now when a homestead is scarcely available for twenty miles north of it and a continent lies beyond which is suitable for the habitation of man, and at present has a considerable population scattered throughout its area, who are interested in overcoming this natural barrier.

Whereas, It will become our government to delay in granting such public works as are asked by us, pioneers who came here ten and fifteen years ago at our own expense, and since have given substantial proof to the world that the yield of our productions cannot be excelled in any other clime.

Whereas, We hailed a railway with delight, but experience has taught us that it is not available for us when we want to market our products in the fall, as the river is impassable owing to running ice.

Whereas we dread the idea of forcing the embryo town of Edmonton to contribute towards the erection of a bridge, as practical experience teaches us that the business men of the town will place an extra price on goods; so as to be recompensed.

Whereas, Knowing the country in its entirety, we are aware that it is unreasonable to exact of the town any aid to the bridge, as it is a national work that teeming millions will use in the near future.

Therefore be it Resolved that a form of letter be printed and that each Canadian regardless of party forward a copy to the member of parliament representing the constituency from which he originally came, with the request that although we are so far off, he assist in removing the disadvantages under which we now labor for lack of a bridge.

LONDON TIMES ON EDMONTON.

What was said in a previous article about the Northwest had reference chiefly to the comparatively treeless prairie country which has hitherto been the principal area of wheat culture. It would be a great mistake, however, to suppose that North-Western Canada consists exclusively of level prairie. We would from Manitoba 'along the Qu'Appelle, northward on the Saskatchewan, and along the eastern slope of the Rocky Mountains are vast regions of a partly wooded, partly grass-covered country, park like in appearance, undulating for the most part, and with striking variations of scenery formed by the grouping of mountains, hill, lake, and river.

Country of this kind will always have for many settlers attractions which they do not find in the absolutely level prairie—attractions for which no richness of soil or ease of culture can compensate. Parts of these regions, while admirably suited for ranching, are, without irrigation, less fitted for agriculture. This is true of considerable districts in the vicinity of Calgary, where, however, the opportunities for irrigation are excellent, and only wait the application of capital and skill. Other parts seem suited alike for grazing and agriculture. It is difficult to speak with anything short of enthusiasm of the appearance and apparent possibilities of one vast region which is now attracting much attention and to which a very considerable stream of settlers has already set in. The railway lately opened for a distance of about 200 miles from Calgary to Edmonton gives easy access to one part of this country; the line between Regina and Prince Albert to another. Between these points and both north and south of the Saskatchewan are areas which nature seems to have especially adapted for that mixed farming which I have mentioned as being the most reliable and satisfactory. There are numerous streams, large and small, of excellent water. The nutritious native grasses, once the only food of millions of buffalo, naturally turn into good hay as they stand, and as in the purely ranching districts, give winter as well as summer food to horses, which are accustomed to pawing away the snow, and to cattle as well, when the snow is not deep on the ground. Abundant shelter for cattle is furnished by the valleys and woodland bluffs, and the latter supply also material for fencing and fuel. Of other abundant food I shall have occasion to speak when considering the coal supplies of the Dominion.

In a drive over a northern portion of this territory, from Edmonton to St. Albert, I was struck with the signs of prosperity which followed even the careless farming of the half-breeds who have for some time occupied this district. Wide fields of wheat stubble, herds of sleek cattle in the field, droves of fat pigs around the stacks of straw in the farm yards, flocks of poultry, all told of plenty to support in comfort a people content to live chiefly on the produce of their own farms. I cannot but think that this whole range of country offers great and varied inducements to hardy settlers, and would yield a rich reward to those who brought industry and intelligence to the work of farming. It is sure to be filled ultimately with a prosperous population, whether the process of settlement goes on slowly or rapidly.

Of the extent of territory capable of successful settlement still further north in the direction of the Peace River, no one as yet even attempts to form an estimate. There is already abundant evidence to show that the deep northward bend of the isothermal lines which occur as we approach the Rocky Mountains upsets entirely all calculations based on the idea that latitude alone determines climate. How far this fact enlarges the supposed scope of agricultural settlement in Canada is one of the interesting problems of the future. Our present concern, however, is with lands actually in the process of settlement.

SCHOOL LAW.

Free Press.

Premier Haultain addressed a large public meeting in Calgary on March 6th, dealing with Northwest matters in general and the school question in particular. In dealing with the constitutional rights and powers of the legislature on the school question he said the school ordinance of 1892 had been assailed on three points—text books, system of inspection, and training and licensing of teachers. As to the first two questions, a double system had been in force previously, with the result of lack of uniformity and efficiency, and had to be superseded. The council of public instruction had not imposed text books objectionable to Catholics, had made no change, except to introduce Ontario readers, which were in use in the separate schools of the province of Ontario, and had previously, from choice, been in use in many Catholic schools of the Territories. As to the right of Catholic inspection, that was taken away by the ordinance of the previous year and he would stand by this law. The old system was cumbersome, inefficient and gave no uniformity to schools of the Territories. Inspection has nothing to do with religious questions, but the legislature, which grants fully fifty per centum of the school revenue, has a right and it is its duty to see that this money is wisely expended and that proper results are obtained, and for this reason uniformity of inspection was introduced. There was no necessity for a double system of inspection. Catholics had complained of the provisions regarding training and licensing of teachers. The right of Catholics to grant certificates to their own teachers had been taken away five years ago. The law was not new in that respect. The legislature which gives such liberal aid to schools had a right to see that teachers should be capable and efficient. Grants were proportional to the class of certificates held. The qualifications of all holding a certain class of certificates should be equal. The legislature could not require Protestants to take normal training and allow Catholics to teach without it. The law had not been arbitrarily administered, Catholics might obtain normal training where they choose, but must obtain it. The terms brutal and high handed had been applied to the council of public instruction, but were not deserved; the council were termed Protestant. That members were so was simply accidental, and it was strictly non-denominational, and without that spirit the Territories could not be united. There were rumors in the press that pressure would be brought to bear upon him to have the law changed. He could not pledge the assembly, but was conscious of nothing wrong, nothing unfair in the law, and no outside pressure could be brought to bear upon him to change what he considered right. Besides, this question was one of principle. We have a right to manage our own affairs, and he would not submit to dictation from any outside quarter. (Loud and prolonged applause.) Before closing, a vote of thanks strongly endorsing the premier's views was passed.

SCHOOL DISTRICTS.

Resolution of the council of public instruction adopted on Saturday 10th February, 1894.

Whereas it has been satisfactorily shown that it will be for the general advantage of those concerned that the limits of the following school districts be altered:

And whereas it has been further satisfactorily shown that the rights of ratepayers under Section 14 of "The Northwest Territories Act," to be affected thereby, will not be prejudiced:

Therefore be it resolved that on and after the date hereof the following tracts of land shall form school districts under the provisions of the school ordinance, namely:—

Firstly:—Sections 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, the north half and south-west quarter of section 20, and the west half of section 17, in township 54, range 24; Sections 2, 3, 4, 9, 10, 11, 14, 15, 16, and that portion of section 5 lying east of Sturgeon river in township 55, range 24, all west of the 4th Meridian, under the corporate name of "the school district of Sturgeon protestant public school district No. 24 of the Northwest Territories."

Secondly:—Sections 1, 2, 3, 4, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 24, 25, and the east halves of sections 5, 8, and 17, and the south-east quarter of section 20 and the south halves of sections 21, 22, and 23, in township 54, range 24, and the west halves of sections 6, 7, 18, 19 and 30 in township 54 range 23, all west of the 4th Meridian, under the corporate name of "the Poplar lake public school district No. 185 of the Northwest Territories."

Thirdly:—Sections 4, 5, 8, 9, 10, 15, 16, 17, 20, 21, 22, and the west halves of sections 6, 7, 18, 19, 30, and those portions of sections 3, 11, 14, and 23 lying west of the Saskatchewan river in township 54, range 23, all west of the 4th Meridian, under the corporate name of "the Horse hill public school district No. 266 of the Northwest Territories."

Fourthly:—Section 36 and the east halves of sections 26 and 35 and that portion of section 25 lying west of the Saskatchewan river in township 54, range 23; Sections 5, 6, 7, 8, 16, 17, 18, 22 and those portions of sections 4, 9, 15 and 23 lying west of the Saskatchewan river in township 55, range 22, and the east halves of sections 1, 12 and 13 in township 55, range 23, all west of the 4th Meridian, under the corporate name of "the school district of Saskatchewan Catholic public school district No. 2 of the Northwest Territories."

Lastly:—Sections 6, 7, 18 and 19 in township 54, range 24; Sections 1, 12, 13, 14, 24, 25 and such portions of sections 2, 3, 11, 15, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26 and 27 as are not included in the special survey of the settlement of Sturgeon river in township 54, range 25, also lots Nos. 36 to 40 of the special survey of the settlement of Sturgeon river, all west of the 4th Meridian, under the corporate name of "the school district of Bellefleur Catholic public school district No. 6 of the Northwest Territories."

SUPREME COURT JUDGMENT.

Judgment of Judge Rouleau delivered March 13th 1894 in the following cases:

John Gutsche, plaintiff, vs. Charles Volrath, defendant and the Edmonton Milling Company (Ltd), garnishees.

Fangott Quost, plaintiff, vs. same defendant and same garnishee.

This was a garnishee issue joined between the above plaintiffs Gutsche and Quost and garnishees The Edmonton Milling Co. (Ltd) and argued during the October sittings of 1893 at Edmonton. The plaintiff claimed that the garnishees were bound to pay to them certain moneys of Volrath which they (the plaintiffs) had attached under garnishee summons.

The Edmonton Milling Co. claimed that they were not indebted to Volrath and consequently not bound to pay to plaintiff, because by contract with Volrath he was to forfeit the first 40 tons of coal he delivered, if he did not faithfully perform his coal contract, and it appeared that Volrath made breaches of contract. The plaintiff claimed in reply that the Edmonton Milling Co. could not claim the forfeit of the whole 40 tons, notwithstanding the agreement permitted it, but could only retain the actual damage sustained, which plaintiffs stated was $25.00 and not $92.00. The garnishees produced evidence to show that the damage was over $100 and also claimed the protection of the agreement and further contended that as the contract was not completed no order of garnishee could be made in favor of the plaintiffs. But his Lordship held that the penalty of 40 tons did not control, and only the actual damage could be deducted, which he placed at $25 (as stated by plaintiffs) and gave judgment in favor of plaintiffs against the Edmonton Milling Co. (Ltd) for the balance and full costs of both issues with costs of the judgment and execution already issued. S. S. Taylor for plaintiffs. C. M. Woodworth for Edmonton Milling Co.

PATRONS OF INDUSTRY.

A convention of delegates from each sub-association of the patrons of industry in Northern Alberta was held in the council chamber, Edmonton on Saturday the 10th inst. Thos. Hutchings president, in the chair. M. McKinlay secretary. The following resolutions setting forth the opinions of the patrons on certain public questions were passed.

Moved by D. Maloney, seconded by H. McKay:

Whereas, The council of public instruction in its wisdom requests the attendance of teachers at Regina for normal training in order that they may be come qualified, which means simply that in this part of the country we are deprived of the benefits that flow from free education, on account of the expenses being excessive. As this is a new agricultural region those in authority could never have considered the low prices and depressed times.

Whereas, It means retrogression in education in this part of the country, as many a farmer would have his son or daughter take up the profession and in a few years supply our own teachers under favorable circumstances; but as at present this is beyond his reach and he must abandon all preparations.

Whereas, If the council of public instruction deems it imperative that normal training should be given, we demand that such instruction be given at Edmonton for all grades.

Whereas, Further if this demand is not granted we pledge ourselves to send representatives to the assembly at Regina at next election who will give effect to our request.

Whereas, We find that partiality is shown by the council in refusing licenses to teachers from all but two of the provinces, which demands redress.

Resolved that having practical knowledge regarding the foregoing demands we claim that they are just and reasonable and cannot conceive why they are not granted.

Moved by J. R. Brenton, seconded by W. Storie.

Whereas, We consider that the time has arrived when supervisors of roads and bridges should be appointed to expend our public moneys to the very best advantage.

Whereas, Having in view the cost of same, each electoral district should be divided into several sections, with one overseer to each to save travelling expenses, and the expenditure to be according to the direction of the people of the several sections.

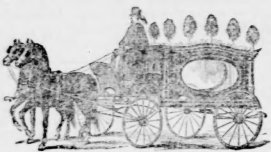

Whereas, We deem it unnecessary to go fully into the reasons for such a change, as the Northwest government is fully cognizant of the facts pertaining to the methods of past years' expenditure.

Moved by Murdoch McLeod, seconded by G. S. Long.

Whereas, By observation and experience we are taught thoroughly that the execution of our laws is not in accordance with common sense or justice, being entirely too expensive, as in many cases it takes 100 per cent to collect an account, and in many cases operate injuriously to creditor as well as debtor. Therefore we recommend that three commissioners be appointed to adjudicate regarding sums under $200; sessions to be held three times a year and no lawyer allowed within precincts: commissioners fees to be small; also all officers to be paid only a nominal amount for services; and such court to be held in one, two or three points in each electoral district. We are aware that if a difficult case is on the docket at present, such men are called to give decision; so we cannot see the reason why their judgment in minor affairs would not as invariably be according to justice.
